

THE IDEA:

According to famous journalist Malcom Gladwell, a key to success in any field is to practice specific task for 10,000 hours. The biggest russian job search website Headhunter can motivate people to reach that goal and to find a better job. You just need to do what you usually do – Headhunter will count your efforts with a special widget and help you find a better job.

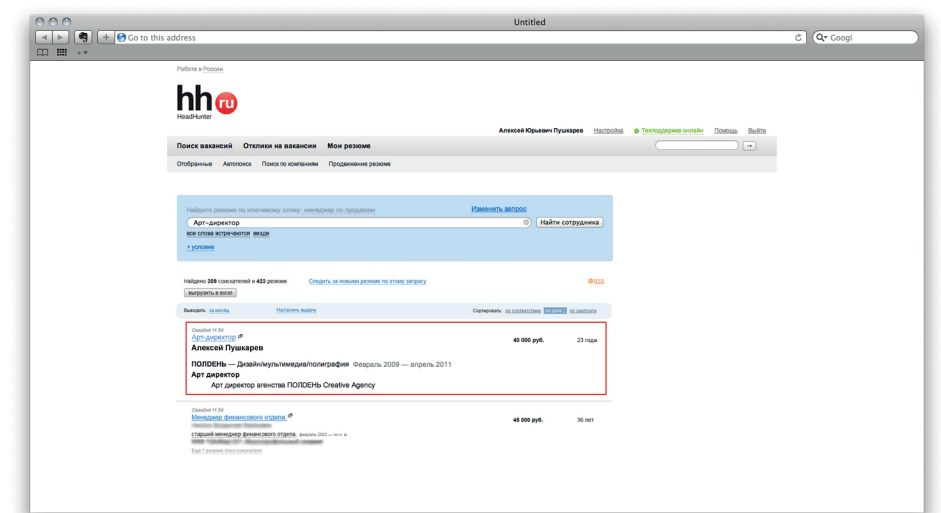

HOW IT WORKS:

You download special widget for Mac or PC, upload your CV with working experience and skills information and pick the soft on you computer you usually work with.

Widget analyzes your Cv and the time you've already spent and starts counting your efforts and work hours spent in professional soft. It automatically updates your experience in electronic CV on the website.

If you work hard your CV will be high lighted and promoted on the website for free. So potential employees will notice you first.